Customer Reviews

I am majoring in the german language and so far I have taken a 3 semesters of german in college. I know the struggle and grammar could be a royal pain in the arse. I did not understand how to tell time, how to use the week endings/strong endings, using the imperative, and etc. Now trying to pronounce a word top the cake. In short, learning German is a very difficult language if you do not understand the concept of how to construct a sentence, when to use the right gender (der, die, das), and if you do not follow the rules of grammar. Living Language German Essential is like a godsend. They break down the rules in a very simple matter, has a bit of humor in Grammar Builder and slowly it builds up your vocabulary. The quizzes are very simple to complete that it is not necessary to look at the answers. The Dialogue are very simple, but pay attention in how they write the sentence. See where they place the verb and how they use the dative, accusative, nominative and genitive. Those are very important things to learn when constructing a sentence, especially in what you are going to say. You will also learn how to write past tense sentence and its rule (haben and sein are your new best friend so do yourself a favor. Learn how to conjugate these two verbs). Now since I have the Living Language German Box set the CDs are wonderful. They go over the vocabularies, as well quiz you with your vocabs. It also basically reads over the book, so you can use it in the car or if you are like me you can download it to your iPhone, iPad, iPod, etc. It really does help you in your pronunciation, especially if you want to be fluent in German. This book is wonderful, but it does contain some flaws.
